

From: John Weldon [weldon@maui.net]
Sent: Tuesday, December 18, 2001 10:15 AM
To: 'Jim Moran'
Subject: Re: LCFINALFINALHHrev121401(pm)

Thanks, Jim, sorry about the brackets; they were just so I could identify the changes I made after sending the ms. in for typesetting.

Re: the cult status, its a difficult issue, & depends on the definition used. Overall, I think I agree with Martin re: a group with cultic characteristics, but if I did a lot more study, I might change my mind.

To prove it would require a lot more time & space than we have.

MAYbe you would want to research it and have a section at your site?

Aloha,

John

Jim Moran wrote:

> Why don't you consider the group to be a cult? (opening lines)
>
> Typos:
>
> Readers are encouraged to "examone" these citations in context in the books > and at www.lsm.org.
>
> 12 [In the following two quotes, although biblical language is sometimes > used, we find statements like these as well:] "...the entire Godhead, the > Triune God, became flesh. Economically speaking, God became flesh in the > Son... Jesus... was the Father, the Son, and the Spirit-man. He lived on this > earth as the Triune God for thirty years before the beginning of His earthly > ministry."
>
> "well:] "...the" - The colon seems misplaced within the brackets.
>
> Witness Lee and the Local Church sometimes describe Jesus Christ as not only > being the Son, but also the Father and the Holy Spirit as well. ["Isaiah 9:6
> reveals that the Son is the Father of eternity... "Since] the" Son is called > the Father of eternity, how can people say that He is not the Father in the > Godhead, but another Father?... Those who twist this verse do not believe the > Bible according to the clear word...." 17
>
> "Since] the" - misplaced bracket?
>
> Consider checking all bracket usage.
>
> Jim
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: weldon@maui.net [mailto:weldon@maui.net]
> Sent: Tuesday, December 18, 2001 11:07 AM
> To: Jim Moran
> Subject: LCFINALFINALHHrev121401(pm)
>
> Dear Jim:
>
> You wanted to see the final chapter.
>
> If you see any problems, please let me know asap.
>

JM-00044

> Thanks again for your help.
>
> Aloha,
>
> John

JM-00045